Practice sheet – UNIT 5

Databases for images / audio /video

Images

- Unsplash: Unsplash offers a vast collection of high-quality, high-resolution images, free to use for personal or commercial projects.

- Pixabay : Pixabay offers a wide variety of free images, including photos, vector illustrations and videos.

- Pexels: Pexels offers a growing collection of high-quality images under a Creative Commons Zero (CC0) licence, which means they can be used for personal and commercial purposes without attribution.

- Flickr Creative Commons: Many photographers on Flickr share their photos under Creative Commons licences, which allow free use in some cases, subject to appropriate attribution.

- Getty Images: Getty Images also offers a free section with high-quality images for non-commercial, editorial or creative use.

Audio

- Free Music Archive: The Free Music Archive offers a wide selection of free music, including Creative Commons licensed tracks that you can use in your projects.

- YouTube Audio Library: The YouTube Audio Library offers a variety of free music tracks and ambient sounds for use in YouTube videos.

- Jamendo : Jamendo offers a Creative Commons licensed music library that you can use for your projects, including commercial projects.

- Incompetech : Incompetech offers free music created by Kevin MacLeod, which can be used in projects with attribution.

- Audiojungle : Audiojungle offers a wide selection of premium audio tracks at affordable prices, ideal for professional projects.

Videos

- Pexels Videos : In addition to its images, Pexels also offers a collection of high-quality free videos.
- Videezy : Videezy offers free videos for personal and commercial use, as well as premium resources.
- Coverr : Coverr offers free videos specially designed for websites and online projects.
- Vimeo Stock : Vimeo offers a library of high-quality premium videos at affordable prices.
- Storyblocks: Storyblocks offers access to a vast library of videos, music and photos for an affordable monthly subscription.

Be sure to check the licences and terms of use for each resource, especially if you plan to use it commercially. Some free resources may have restrictions on use.